Voter ID

From October this year, you must show photo ID when voting in a general election at a polling station. In the unlikely event that Londoners don't have at least one of the following - passport, driving licence, Post Office PASS card, Blue Badge, Oyster 60+ card or Disabled or Older Person's Freedom Pass - you can now be issued with a FREE Voter Authority Certificate. Apply online at voterauthority-certificate.service .gov.uk where you'll need a digital photo of yourself and your NI number. If you need any help, write to Electoral Services, Wandsworth Town Hall, High Street, SW18 2PU or go in person or tel 020 8871 6023.

If you aren't able to sign Age UK's online petition calling for action to tackle the barriers facing older Londoners who are offline and need council services (campaigns.ageuk.org .uk/page/135031/petition/1) write to: FREEPOST, Age UK Campaigns to get a printed version. No stamp needed!

What Wandsworth plans to do for us

Wandsworth's Joint Local Health and Wellbeing Strategy, 19 Steps to *Health & Wellbeing, will probably have been finalised by the time you read this, after a public consultation in which the Forum took part. The strategy sets out the Health and Wellbeing Board's five-year plan to meet the needs of residents.

Cllr Graeme Henderson, Chair of the Health and Wellbeing Board, said: "We have come up with 19 steps to health and wellbeing based on an in-depth assessment of need in the [borough]"

The 19 steps are placed into three sections: 1) Start Well is specific to children (targeting such areas as childhood obesity); 2) Live Well, which looks at topics as wideranging as physical activity & healthy eating, bowel cancer screening, air quality and climate change that anyone might be interested in; and 3) Age Well, which looks at three downsides to old age: falls, dementia and isolation.

The Forum agreed these three areas require more work. Falls are the largest cause of hospital admissions for people over-65 and bringing a huge loss of confidence. A diagnosis of dementia is not welcome, but it enables plans to be made for the future and for the person to attend activities to help keep their brain cells functioning. We need more such activities as well as more people receiving a proper diagnosis. Wandsworth is well behind the numbers predicted from population studies.

Isolation and loneliness among older people is where we can all help by making sure we talk to Contd overleaf

Shingles vaccine offered to 65-year-olds

From 1 September GPs have been offering the new shingles vaccine Shingrix to almost one million more people.

Previously, the older Zostavax vaccine was the only vaccine on offer and only given to people aged from 70 up to 79. But GPs can now give the Shingrix vaccine to anyone who turns either 65 or 70 on or after 1 September 2023. Those who reached the age of 70 before that date will join the standard vaccine programme (currently still Zorovax) for everyone in their 70s, while people aged between 66-69 will have to wait until they are 70. Once all stocks of Zostavax are exhausted, Shingrix will be offered instead.

Shingrix has been given to immuno-compromised individals in their 70s since 2021. Now those aged 50 and above are eligible to receive it, with no upper age limit.

This is part of a major rollout of Shingrix for immunocompetent people, and from 2033, it is planned that Shingrix will be available at age 60.

Dr Mary Ramsay, Director of Immunisation at the UK Health Security Agency, said: "Shingles is an extremely painful condition and complications can be longlasting. Older people and those with weakened immune systems are particularly vulnerable. A newly available vaccine, Shingrix, is being offered on the NHS from 1 September to those aged 70 and 65 years on or after that date, and to those with severely weakened immune systems from 50 years of age." Anyone who has had chickenpox could develop shingles. The chickenpox virus hides in the body and a repeat appearance of this virus is called shingles. This clears up by itself although antiviral tablets may be prescribed. But if shingles wasn't bad enough, for some unlucky people (1 in 5) it leaves behind something far worse: postherpetic neuralgia.

Post-herpetic neuralgia (PHN) is the most common complication of shingles and causes a burning nerve pain in an area of your skin previously affected by shingles and lasts long after the rash and blisters go away. The risk of PHN rises with age.

Many people with PHN recover within a year. But symptoms can last for several years or may be permanent. The pain may come and go or be continuous. Paracetamol and ibuprofen do not usually help, so you will need to contact your GP.

The best way to avoid PHN is, of course, not to get shingles. The older single-dose Zostavax vaccine reduces the risk of getting it by around 51%. Shingrix, a two-dose shingles vaccine, is more than 95% efficient at preventing it. If you had shingles in the past, Shingrix can also help prevent future occurrences.

You should be contacted by your GP when you become eligible for your vaccination. If you have not been, and believe you are eligible, you should get in touch to find out why and to book an appointment. VH

Shingles is a painful, blistering rash caused by the reactivation of the chickenpox virus

Council supports Pension Credit payout

Wandsworth Council announced in September that it had "helped 126 Wandsworth pensioner households claim a total of £414,666 in unclaimed Pension Credit".

Earlier this year, spurred on by the cost-of-living crisis, London Mayor Sadiq Khan launched a campaign involving 17 London boroughs, including Wandsworth, to ensure older residents weren't missing out.

As part of a joint awareness campaign, the council was able to help 126 local pensioner households to each receive an additional £3,291 a year in unclaimed Pension Credit.

Cllr Angela Ireland, Wandsworth's Cabinet Member for Finance, said: "This extra income they will now be receiving each year will have a really positive impact on the day-to-day lives of many Wandsworth pensioners. We are delighted this scheme has been so successful and pleased that these residents are now receiving what they are owed."

Previously, the council set up the Cost of Living Hub* in partnership with Citizens Advice to ensure residents can access the help they need and are entitled to.

neighbours who live alone. Commissioners of services can do a lot to support voluntary bodies providing lunch clubs and coffee mornings, but we too can do our bit as they only work when people volunteer to help.

While a majority of respondents agreed or strongly agreed with the proposals, Shannon Katiyo, Director of Public Health, explained that an additional report would be produced "demonstrating how the consultation feedback will influence the delivery of actions [resulting] from the strategy".

The seeds of law-breaking

I'm aware that this recent hot weather could have been a challenge for many of you and I hope you all coped, but it made me think of how we're supposed to remember the "Old Days" as always bathed in sunshine, though one of the days I remember best was when it rained.

Treats at Tenby

For several years, my parents and my aunt and uncle rented a cottage in Tenby for the holidays. My two cousins and I loved it, but one day, unusually, the heavens opened so us kids were allowed to go to the one Amusement Arcade (previously firmly discouraged) with a supply of pennies – presumably so the parents could stay home and play cards and drink GIN.

My cousin Louise was a tiny little girl and when squeezing down the back of one of the machines searching for her hair ribbon she discovered a sort of depository of pennies. We were in Heaven. The pennies weren't ours, so really, we must have stolen them. Stolen!! That meant we were THIEVES.

Then the parents dragged us out so we could go to film. A cinema in a strange town was weird somehow (I'd only ever been to the Essoldo in Stanley or the Odeon in Newcastle, and not very often at that, and it was usually Haley Mills) and we saw The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance, a grown-up cowboy film. Now it was my father who was in heaven – he was besotted with John Wayne. I remember nothing of the film except that we were allowed to sit away from the grown-ups and that somehow we sneaked out to buy more Kia Ora (or maybe a Wall's ice cream sandwich) with the STOLEN PENNIES.

REALLY naughty!

Then we went back to the cottage and bounced on one of the beds (to the BBC Light Programme; V-A-C-A-T-I-O-N by Connie Francis) till we broke it. We must have been given an enormous talkingto but I have no recollection of any of that, just the newfound joy of being really naughty and thinking maybe later, when I was grown-up, I could have an exciting Life of Crime. But here I am, being your Administrator. Oh well...Happy days, eh?

Su Elliott Membership Secretary & Administrator

The first speaker at the July meeting was Cllr Judi Gasser Cabinet Member for the Environment on Wandsworth Council. She said in the year and two months since Labour won control, Wandsworth was starting to become a better place and problems of homelessness were beginning to be tackled. The borough was now welcoming refugees and was working towards becoming a borough of sanctuary. The council was also trying hard to improve street cleaning and waste collection. Judi's pet project, the Citizen's Assembly on air quality, which was made up of local people, had come up with 53 recommendations to clean up the air, improve people's health and tackle climate change. In a new approach to participatory democracy in action, Citizen's Assembly members presented their ideas directly to the council in June. People can read the council report "Shared Future" on the website wandsworth.org.uk.

After the talk, Lilias asked about Ulez and the dependency of some older, less mobile people on their car. Are there discounts for people with blue disabled badges? Judi said she would find out. (Go to the council website and search for "Ulez expansion: support for disabled people".) Tony Tuck said he was 100% in favour of Ulez.

Judi was asked what were the council's priorities. She said the council had to be very careful as there was so much that needed doing. Although the previous administration had left large reserves because it hadn't spent much, many services hadn't been funded as they should have been. Fly-tipping was mentioned. Judi said 18 times a year "mega skips" were now being placed in neighbourhoods around the borough for all local residents to use free of charge. The number had gone up from the previous 12 after this led to an 11% decrease in fly-tipping. For dates and sites of skips, go to the council website and search for "Mega Skip Days".

Next up, a speaker from SWLeap (SW London Energy Advice Partnership) who brought leaflets about free energy advice for people living on benefits, who are disabled, elderly or in fuel poverty. During visits, advisers can give tips on saving money and, while there, also instal a range of energy-saving items such as low-energy lightbulbs, radiator heat reflectors and insulation at no cost. Call 0800 086 2706.

Next to speak was Emma- Louise Naef from the Royal Trinity Hospice, at Clapham Common, the oldest hospice in the country. Its catchment area is the whole of Wandsworth. These days, 20% of its services are provided in the hospice, and 80%

are out in the community. While it provides end-of-life care and palliative care, it also runs Living Well services offering tai chi, coffee mornings and walks on Clapham Common. The latest service is the Compassionate Neighbours project, where a network of compassionate neighbours are matched with lonely people in the later stages of life, through age or illness. You can refer yourself or someone else for this support on 020 7787 1000.

Last to speak was Ashley Jordan from One Stop Organisers (OSO) which she set up to help people achieve a better life balance. Some services are free. OSO offers free advice at a drop-in clinic on retirement and getting older at St Mary and St John the Divine, Balham High Road on the fourth Wednesday of the month from 10-11am. OSO has also set up Café Connections, twicemonthly Zoom meetings for retired people to chat and share. See info on this on the page opposite.

The September meeting began with a musical half-hour from Ukule Allsortz, featuring Max (a member of the Forum on the ukulele), Cynthia, Will and Jorge (see back page). The only speaker of the day was Seema Khan from the Care4Calais charity, which was set up in 2017 and supports asylum-seekers in SW London. Care4Calais is a volunteer-run charity that works with refugees in hotels and hostels while they wait for asylum claims to be processed. It provides shortterm practical help (eg, with clothes, food, toiletries, travel). Seema stressed that it is NOT illegal to seek asylum and asked us to think about the reasons "why anyone would get into one of those boats if they weren't desperate". During questions, Su mentioned the former Battersea MP Alf Dubs' work for refugees, himself a child refugee who fled the Nazis, and how he always stressed that different people coming to the UK can enhance all our lives. Stay one step ahead of the scammers

It's been a while since we've been able to do anything on scams, but that's not because the scammers have taken a holiday. Here are two that caught our eye recently.

Telephone switchover scams

Highlighted by Which? recently has been the Local Government Association's warning that fraudsters are exploiting the upcoming digital phone switchover (see the "Big Switch-Off" in our summer issue) to scam vulnerable people.

As you may remember, people who use healthcare phone systems are having to check with their providers that these will continue to work. Already anxious, such people are particularly at risk of being targeted by scammers, who try to trick victims into disclosing personal and financial information over the phone. Around 1.8 million use these devices across the UK.

The LGA says it knows of incidents in Cheshire where residents were contacted over the phone by callers claiming to work for the NHS, saying their bank details were needed or the service would be disconnected.

The LGA expects scam attempts, including phishing emails and fake websites to get your personal information, to increase as the switchover nears in 2025.

Be on your guard! As Cllr Heather Kidd, Chair of the LGA's Safer and Stronger Communities Board, reminds us: "The digital switchover is free of charge [for everyone], and [supported] residents should be aware that councils and their homecare alarm providers or contractors will never ask for personal or financial information over the telephone."

Recovery scams

All scams are distressing, but recovery scams are particularly so, as scammers try to take advantage of people at a time when they're at their most vulnerable – having recently lost money to fraudsters. The usual tactics used in recovery scams include scammers (most often the same ones who scammed you in the first place) contacting you out of the blue and pressuring you to use their "service" to recover the money you've just had stolen. As part of the scam, they will request your bank details and ask for an upfront fee.

If anyone asks you to pay a fee to recover your money, or provide your bank account or card details, end all contact immediately. But if unfortunately you do get scammed, call your bank straight away using the number on the back of your card. You should also report the scam to Action Fraud. None of these steps will cost you money.

Covid: A little extra protection?

Due to BA.2.86, the new Covid-19 variant, the NHS brought the annual flu and Covid vaccination programmes forward from October to 11 September for those at risk.

Current NHS advice is "everyone should consider taking a daily vitamin D supplement of 10 micrograms [sometimes written 400 IU] during autumn and winter" when our bodies don't make enough from sunlight, and colds and flu cases surge. And those most at risk of a vitamin D deficiency are urged to take a 10 mcg supplement of this immune-system supporting vitamin all year round: ie, those "not often outdoors - for example, if they're frail or housebound"; or "have dark skin - for example, you have an African, African-Caribbean or south Asian background". There have even been "reports of vitamin D reducing the risk of Covid-19", adds the NHS website. So taking a vitamin D supplement might well be worth it as winter approaches! VH

Geoff Simmons, a community historian in SW London. And two of his history walks

It's very likely that some of the people reading this will have been on one of Geoff Simmons' walks and talks over the past 10 years including one of his latest on 1 September entitled "Springfield Revealed" — a guided history walk around London's first park created since 2012. He runs a community history project in South West London called Summerstown182 alongside his job as a graphic designer. This involves guided walks and talks in the Wandsworth area, working with schools and putting up plaques.

Over the years, a trail of these has emerged along the Wandle Valley, shining a light on some of the lesser-known history in this area. In September, Geoff's "Barney's Wandle Ramble" featured as one of the events in Wandle Fortnight 2023, which ended 24 September, and included a plaque unveiling. Plaque subjects have ranged from the youngest soldier to serve this country in the WW1 to groundbreaking plaques acknowledging the Romany Gypsy and Traveller heritage in Tooting. Next year he is planning to erect a plaque on the site of Tooting Bec Asylum.

During lockdown, he produced a set of self-guided walks people could do themselves and a series of online talks called "Zooming Tooting". A recent innovation is a musical history tour that involves going around key locations in the Tooting area, telling stories to the accompaniment of a relevant soundtrack. He is now adapting a version of this to bring to the borough's dementia-friendly cafes over the next few months. Look out for his famous "Spooking Tooting" Halloween Walk coming up on 31 October, which will meet at 6.30pm at Tooting Broadway!
